

Each box is a function.

Where the relation between boxes in the same row is OR you will need to use some selection control statement.

Where the relation between boxes in the same row is THEN the processes are each sub functions of the box above and are executed sequentially.

There are decisions to be made about how to handle the Get data procedure: where should it happen? Should there be one or more than one procedure?